George Papachristos graduated from the Massachusetts School of Law and was admitted to the state bar in 2005. Papachristos was then hired with the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office. After working in the district courts of the county, Papachristos was promoted to the supervising assistant district attorney, where he oversaw all district court criminal matters. Papachristos was also promoted to the Motor Vehicle Homicide Unit of the office and then to the Superior Court Unit, fulltime. He handled a wide variety of cases involving motor vehicle homicide and drug trafficking. His experience not only included countless hours in the courtroom, but also in the investigative phases of cases. Papachristos responded to crime scenes involving motor vehicles and participated in investigations involving local and state police.

Papachristos was also a featured speaker at the Norfolk County Superior Court Practical Skills Seminar in the area of accident reconstruction in April 2012. Currently, Papachristos' areas of expertise range from criminal defense to family law. He also works diligently with nonprofit law programs to provide pro bono legal services to Boston persons in need.
